As July began, temperatures rose sharply, and locations across the country started recording days of extreme heat. Now that days with daytime highs exceeding 40°C are being referred to as "extreme heat days," I can't help but feel that it is going to get even hotter. We need to slow down climate change, even if only slightly, and prevent large-scale natural disasters.

Opening Event for the Global Warming Prevention Panel Exhibition

This marks the seventh year since we established a non-profit organization dedicated to preventing global warming. To date, we have held the "Global Warming Prevention Panel Exhibition" more than 35 times, utilizing event spaces in shopping malls and department stores. Not only did the number of responses to the panel exhibition survey steadily decline, but there was also no end to the opinions insisting that global warming is a hoax.

Therefore, we have decided to hold an opening event in conjunction with the 39th Global Warming Prevention Panel Exhibition, which will take place at the former Bank of Japan Hiroshima Branch. 1. To begin with, why does the Earth's average temperature continue to rise? 2. What kind of activities does the NPO "Environment NGO Kingfisher" regularly conduct? 3. What can we do to contribute to the prevention of global warming? We hope that by answering questions such as these, we can help your activities move forward, even if only a little.
